Food security, disasters and climate change vulnerability in the Tropical Andes region

Analysis has been conducted starting from national sources at different administrative scales. Although presented together, maps of each country should be interpreted separately as the indicators used to construct the maps differ between countries.

Source: World Food Program, Food Security, Disasters and Climate Change in the Andean Region, 2014