Human Development Indicators by Accessibility Index

ACCESSIBILITY:
Data was only available for 2 countries, all situated in the more arid part of West Africa. The common-sense logic ' the more accessible the more developed' seems to be confirmed through the life expectancy indicator (children that died before the age of 5).
The other indicators do not show very clear trends. Striking is the general low levels of female literacy in this part of West Africa, regardless of accessibility.

GRID Arendal